

We All Need Saving

Imagine you went into a store and ate an ice cream, even though you didn't have the money to pay for it. This would be wrong and illegal, and the storeowner would have every right to be very angry with you and call the police. But just at that moment a friend of yours comes into the store, realizes what is happening, and gives his own money to the store owner to pay for the ice cream you stole. Your friend has paid your debt. In this situation, your friend has saved you.

Another example would be if you went swimming at the beach and got caught in the current and carried out to sea. As the waves get bigger and you become tired, you start drowning.

But just at that moment a lifeguard comes along in a rescue boat and brings you safely back to shore. The lifeguard has saved you.
